

Asad-Azeem-UI-Shan: An Iron Human

My very first meeting with Amjad sahib took place through a friend in a friendly country, and it was a very ordinary meeting in which there was a conversation on a short documentary film being made about Amjad sahib's life. In the first meeting, Amjad sahib appeared just like an ordinary person who became disabled as a result of an accident, but as the sequence of meetings with him grew, it became clear that Amjad Siddiqi is no ordinary human being, but rather an individual possessing exceptionally strong nerves of steel. Becoming disabled in a car accident, Amjad Siddiqi did not make his disability a weakness, but through his immense willpower and practical action, made the impossible possible. He didn't just continue his job, but after some time, started his own independent business and within a few years, established his position as a well-recognized Pakistani businessman in Saudi Arabia. Through his tireless hard work and honesty, he illuminated not only his own name but the name of Pakistan as well. Despite his disability, he traveled to 52 countries, raised the flag high across the entire world, and earned the title of "One in a Million" from a country like the United States. Amjad Siddiqi is certainly an example for all those people who are victims of despair due to any kind of disability. The journey of pain that started from an accident turned Amjad Siddiqi into a compassionate person with a heart that feels for others, and today, his life is a beacon of light for others. Today, the name of Amjad Siddiqi is taken with immense respect not only in business circles, but he takes part enthusiastically in social welfare and community relief work as well, and never lets an opportunity to serve humanity slip from his hands. In reality, he is a positive and radiant face of Pakistan who has become an identity of Pakistan across the entire world. Walking in his footsteps, countless people have reached their destinations, and countless others have made a firm resolve to move toward their destination. People like Amjad Siddiqi are truly "One in a Million," and in the true sense, they are the identity of Pakistan and the pride of Pakistan. By writing "Unyielding Spirit," Amjad bhai has in reality done an immense favor to all disabled individuals. Reading this book, such people will certainly get to learn a lot who lose courage due to any kind of disability and give up on living. Even more than that, ordinary people will also gain immense courage from it. This book of Amjad Siddiqi will prove to be the glad tidings of a brand new life for these people. Amjad Siddiqi will always remain a deeply proud friend for me, and my good wishes and prayers are always with him.
