

nasir adeeb: You have done it!

Why did Mr. Amjad Siddiqi write Unyielding Spirit? Only he can truly answer that question... Perhaps it was written to ease his own loneliness... or perhaps it was written to show the world how much courage and determination he possessed to keep living and moving forward. It is also possible that he wished to immortalize himself through the pages of this book... However... in my view... his book is not merely an autobiography or just a story of his unbelievable courage, nor is it simply a tale of internal suffering. Instead... the reality is that it is a profound history of human tragedies, emotions, failures, successes, tangled dreams, scattered thoughts, and estranged people, changing just like the seasons change humanity's pride. It is a history of untold stories that not everyone can tell or even wants to tell. This is not a journey of pain; it is actually a journey of the heart, a journey of a heart in which God resides. Therefore, after reading it... a person understands themselves first. And whoever understands themselves, understands God... and whoever understands God... learns how to live in any condition or circumstance by becoming like Amjad Siddiqi. If it were up to me, this book should be placed under the pillow of every single young person.
